"THE POWER TO SEE OURSELVES"

Dear Girl! What an illuminating experience it is to be away the first time from one's other self. Here was I, sure that I was a self-starter in my daily life, independent of any one for comfort, advice and care of my in-laws and out-laws. And so I was, up to a few months ago when I married you. But now—

I was awakened this morning by an internal buzzing in the kitchen. I had heard that buzzing before, I suppose, although I never before penetrated my thoughts. I had a vague memory of you stirring every morning in answer to that buzzing; some muffled words down the dumb-waiter shaft—and some necessary nuisance of a thing what to do, and wanted to know less. I tried to ignore it, but the darn thing lost its temper and declared it would keep up buzzing all winter. So I had to get up and ask it what the simp blank it wanted.

It seems that the janitor insisted on my sending some meat down or the butcher wanted to send some garbage up. I forgot which—there were several buzzings. I couldn't think of the first thing to do, so I longed for you and swore at the man below. It was not his swearing up at me in return I minded as much as his being right and my being wrong. It proved the list of instructions you left pinned up on the door of the dumbwaiter. After that everything was plain sailing until Katie came in and took the house off my head.

Both before I remembered that list and after, I realized how much I had learned to depend upon you for little inconsidered things that very quickly make themselves the clamorous nuisances of life, if left unconsidered.

I read my morning paper as usual on the train and tore half a dozen clippings out and stuffed them in my pockets as per habit to read to you at night—things in the day's news I wanted your assistance in swearing at; your woman's point of view; and what on earth is "mole-dyed, kit coney?" Then as I stuffed the last of them into my vest pocket I remembered you would not be home to see them tonight. So I send them with this letter. You would imagine I'd forget you as soon as I struck the office. But for some reason, more things came up in the day I was writing on which I wanted your opinion than ever before. The woman point of view. Gosh, I never till today realized how much this civilization of ours depends on the woman. I am sending you the enclosed advertisement, with a petition of your comment on the marked paragraphs.

I plugged hard all day and felt pretty fagged. The thought of a quiet little dinner at home, with you bustling in the kitchen and nothing for me to do but make the salad dressing, seemed good to me—while the thought lasted.

I took dinner at Pagan's restaurant. Hitherto, the place meant fun for me. Pagan, with Ma Pagan's wonderful favioli and broiled chicken, and the little half-portion fireplace by the side of our table, and the gang dropping in. Never did I think of it as "restaurant." Tonight it was worse. I haven't written anything of the kind, have I? I am asking because I am afraid to read this letter lest I find that I have done just that very thing—no, I find on rereading that I have not written once "I miss you"; so it must be that I don't!

I want you to fill your letter as full of yourself as I have filled this one with myself. Tell me of every breath you breathe, every thought you think, every nice thing you do for people about you—I can just see you doing them! I want to have you as near me as writing can bring one. For, while I don't miss you, I "could do" very well with the feel of my arms about you.

WALT.

BAMBERGER PRAISES THE PEOPLE OF THE GREAT WEST

Washington, Dec. 15.—Accepting the invitation extended today by Governor-elect Simon Bamberger of Utah, governors of the various states of the Union will meet in annual conference next summer at Salt Lake City. An informal invitation also was extended by Governor William Spry, who was honored by being made chairman of the executive committee, which decided the next meeting place. The date for the meeting at Salt Lake was not fixed. In bidding for the next convention, Governor-elect Bamberger said:

"I bring you a message from the west."

"Not long ago you received, with emotions not unlike, a message from the west. I think it arrived in the east the day after the recent election. My understanding is that it had the effect of nullifying certain celebrations that were suspiciously begun the evening before."

"Some of you who reside in the east may doubt the wisdom of the message received from the west. Be that as it may, it certainly had a powerful effect in arousing interest in the west."

"From the map on the morning after election there glared out on the east a new section of the United States, a mysterious distant region beyond the Mississippi; a vast domain hitherto regarded as a possession of the east. This new dominion, the abode of woman's suffrage, prohibition, Indians, Mormons, the initiative and referendum, Progressives and other untamed predatory animals, had elected a president of the United States and imposed him on the astounded, incredulous east."

"Aside from the wisdom of the selection, which the west will admit without controversy, the result was worth while if it had the effect of arousing the curiosity of the east regarding the application of our enemies, of which you have heard through news telegrams. Word of peace coming from the side which bears the whole burden of responsibility for the world conflagration, which it started and which is unparalleled in the annals of history, was no surprise to the allies."

"In the course of two and one-half years of war Germany has more than once mentioned peace. She spoke of it to her armies and her people each time she entered upon a military operation which was to be decisive. After each military success she put out feelers for a separate peace on one side and another, and conducted a propaganda in the neutral press. All these efforts have met with calm and determined resistance by the allied powers."

"Seeing now that she is powerless to make a breach in our unshakable alliance, Germany makes an official proposal to open peace negotiations. In substance, the German proposal contains no tangible indications regarding the nature of the peace which is desired by the enemy armies which devastated and occupied Belgium, Serbia and Montenegro, and part of France, Russia and Rumania."

"To attempt at the last moment to profit by their fleeting territorial conquest before their domestic weakness was revealed, that was the real meaning of the German proposal. In the event of failure, they would exploit at home the refusal of the allies to accept peace in order to rehabilitate the tottering morale of their populations."

Failed to Understand Russia.

"But there is another senseless motive, in that they fail to understand the true spirit which animates Russia. Our enemies deceive themselves with the vain hope that they will find among us men cowardly enough to allow themselves to be deceived, if only for a moment, by the lying proposals. That will not be. No Russian heart will yield. All Russia will rally more closely around its august sovereign, who declared at the very beginning of the war that he would not make peace until the last enemy soldier had left our country, and for the general collaboration which constitutes the only sure means of arriving at the end we all have at heart, namely, the crushing of the enemy."

ANNAPOLIS TO BE LABORATORY SITE

Washington, Dec. 15.—Formal approval of the selection at Annapolis of the site for the $1,500,000 naval laboratory as recommended by a subcommittee of the civilian advisory board will be made by Secretary Daniels within the next few days.

The committee's report for which the secretary has been awaiting, was received today and dismissed doubt of a division over the selection. Only one member, it is understood, was opposed to Annapolis.

RUSSIA REJECTS OFFERS OF PEACE

Duma Unanimously Votes to Continue the War Against the Central Powers.

London, Dec. 15, 10:50 p. m.—A dispatch to Reuters' Telegram company from Petrograd says:

"The duma has unanimously passed a resolution against the acceptance of the German peace proposals, after a spirited speech by the minister of foreign affairs."

The text of the resolutions as received here follows:

"The duma, having heard the statement by the minister of foreign affairs, unanimously favors a categorical refusal by the allied governments to enter under present conditions, into any peace negotiations whatever."

"It considers that the German proposals are nothing more than a fresh proof of the weakness of the enemy and a hypocritical act from which the enemy expects no real success, but by which it seeks to throw upon others the responsibility for the war and for what happened during it, and to exculpate itself before public opinion in Germany."

"The duma considers that a premature peace would not only be a brief period of calm, but would involve the danger of another bloody war and a renewal of the deplorable sacrifices by the people. It considers that a lasting peace will be possible only after a decisive victory over the military powers of the enemy and after definite renunciation by Germany of the aspiration which renders her responsible for the world war and for the horrors by which it has been accompanied."

Attitude of Russian Nation.

M. Pokrovsky in his speech to the duma said:

"In addressing you immediately upon having been appointed minister of foreign affairs, I am not prepared to give you a detailed statement on the political situation, but I feel constrained to inform you without delay, and with the supreme authorization of his imperial majesty, of the attitude of the Russian government regarding the application of our enemies, of which you have heard through news telegrams. Word of peace coming from the side which bears the whole burden of responsibility for the world conflagration, which it started and which is unparalleled in the annals of history, was no surprise to the allies."

"In the course of two and one-half years of war Germany has more than once mentioned peace. "The Russian government repudiates with indignation the mere idea of suspending the struggle, thereby permitting Germany to take advantage of the last chance she will have of subjecting Europe to her hegemony. The innumerable sacrifices already made would be vain if premature peace were concluded, with an enemy whose forces have been shaken, but not broken, and an enemy which is seeking a breathing space by making deceitful offers of a permanent peace."

"In this inflexible decision, Russia is in complete agreement with all her allied allies. We are all equally convinced of the vital necessity of carrying on the war to a victorious end, and no subterfuge by our enemies will prevent us from following this path to the end."

CHILDREN ARE TO RECEIVE GIFTS

Pocatello, Idaho, Dec. 15.—Preparations are now well under way for Pocatello's first municipal Christmas tree, which will supply gifts for 3000 children. The tree will be placed in the vacant square in front of the Oregon Short Line depot, where appropriate exercises will be held Christmas eve. The City band has donated its services and will render music suitable to the occasion, and Christmas carols will be sung by the school children. The merchants and fraternal organizations of the city are donating the decorations and gifts.

The affair is in charge of the following committee: Mrs. H. B. Thompson, chairman; Mrs. W. A. Anthes, Mrs. E. E. Andrews, Mrs. Iona Hart, Mrs. H. H. Kurtz, Miss Clara Fargo, Mrs. Lyman Fargo, Mrs. J. B. Mullen, Mrs. N. A. Pond, Mrs. George Gasser, Mrs. F. Stockslager and Mrs. F. S. Rogers.

CAPITOL MAY HAVE BUST OF HARRIMAN

In response to a suggestion from Mrs. Mary Harriman that it might not be inappropriate to have a bronze or other sort of bust of the late E. H. Harriman placed in the Utah state capitol, the capitol commission has commissioned A. R. Barnes, attorney general, to communicate with the widow of the late railroad magnate and suggest that the state would be glad to place a bust of her husband in the capitol if she will furnish the bust.

The commission did not feel that it had the funds to provide the bust itself, it is explained, but it would be glad to have a cast, and to find a suitable place for it in the state's building if Mrs. Harriman will furnish the piece of statuary. A letter to this effect is being prepared by the attorney general to Mrs. Harriman.

DYNAMITE IS FOUND ON OREGON SHORT LINE TRAIN

Salt Lake, Dec. 16.—Mystery shrouds the finding of an abandoned suitcase containing seventy-six sticks of dynamite yesterday in coach No. 692 of train No. 32 of the Oregon Short Line railroad upon its arrival in Salt Lake from Butte.

The train reached the city at 10:15 a. m. Shortly afterwards Conductor R. H. Hall and Martin Christensen, passenger director at the station, went through the train and discovered the suitcase.

The train news dealer is reported to have observed three young men, respectably dressed, sitting near the suitcase while on its journey to this city. It is believed that they came from Canada, inasmuch as they paid for purchases from the news dealer in Canadian money. They spoke English perfectly and it is not believed that they had anything to do with the suitcase.

According to Detectives Bert Seager and J. A. Egbert, who were detailed on the case, the suitcase probably belonged to a German. Besides the dynamite there was found in the suitcase a German paper, the California Demokrat, published in San Francisco and dated November 21, 1916. There was also found a small empty bottle of small arterial disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven that to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only reliable cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

It is not believed by the police that the suit case belonged to a person or persons having any intention of participating in bomb outrages in this country. The dynamite, according to the detectives, contained 40 per cent of nitroglycerin. Such sticks of dynamite are used for blasting purposes by miners.

The suitcase is somewhat dilapidated. It shows that it has been used for years. The detectives did not believe that the man to whom the suitcase belonged was necessarily a German sympathizer just because there happened to be a German paper in it.

According to the police, it is unlikely that the man who owned the suitcase will make any claim for it, as the carrying of explosives upon a passenger train involves a heavy penalty under the law.
